Dear Harve,

Here are the two documents I mentioned. The one on the skull fragment is okay to use whenever you want. The one on the fragment in Connally's leg is for Friday night.

If you can get a chemist or a physist orsomeone to make you a fragment of lead that size and weigh it on a scale fine enough to measure grains, I believe you will find that this alone is too much to permit the single-bullet theory, already destroyed by the evidence in my first two books.

These are among the douuments to be included in WHITEWASH III: THE ARCHIVE. A number of things, chief among them my continuing work, has delayed this book a month to two months. It will now be much larger.

Best,
